DEMONSTRATION

Dermatologists understand that cellular oxidation (sometimes referred to as cellular metabolism) is a source of skin aging. Research has shown that the nutrients, especially hydroxytyrosol, found in extra virgin olive oil can be effective in relieving oxidative stress on cells. To demonstrate the ability of Celltrex® Ultra to minimize oxidation, cut a russet potato* in half and spread Celltrex® Ultra Recovery Fluid onto one half of the potato. Do not apply any product to the other half of the potato. Place the two halves side by side and examine both halves of the potato

CELLTRET[®] ULTRA RECOVERY FLUID

after fifteen minutes. You will notice, the half of the potato with Celltrex[®] Ultra still looks fresh, while the untreated half is beginning to brown. The longer you wait, the more dramatic the difference between the two halves becomes. *A russet potato will provide the most visually compelling results.

Why this demonstration works: As the untreated half of the potato is exposed to the air, it begins to oxidize. The powerful antioxidant hydroxytyrosol actually protects the other half of the potato from oxidation, keeping it from turning brown. Your skin oxidizes in a similar way in response to free radicals—causing many of the common signs we associate with aging. Celltrex[®] Ultra Recovery Fluid, with patented hydroxytyrosol, can protect your skin from skinaging free radical damage.
